

Izzy's Rescue Story

Found on the streets of Mexico after being dumped off the highway from a puppy mill. Apparently he was a breeder dog until he got mange... rather than waste money to treat him, he was dumped and left to die on the streets.

It took awhile to catch this scared little dog - but they were finally successful!

The Angels of Ambos Rescue in San Carlos named him "Izzy" after finally catching him at Izzy's Market. He was a mess! He needed water, food and immediate medical treatment. They didn't even know his breed at the time.

After 6 months of daily baths and medication the open sores and many scabs healed and Izzy finally grew his hair back and became a beautiful champagne poodle. What a difference!

The Central Coast SPCA took him after Suzann at Ambos Rescue let us know he was ready for a home of his own. Izzy is a wonderful dog but lacked that "certain something" that comes from not knowing your own future. He lacked the confidence that comes from knowing where the next meal was coming from, and who might want to hurt him.

But not anymore! Once he arrived in the States Izzy was fostered in a wonderful home where he learned love, friendship, and trust.

On November 17 Izzy was adopted by a wonderful couple in Santa Maria. They absolutely adore him and he is spoiled silly every day. Izzy has completely relaxed now - he snuggles with his furry sister Meg, cuddles his mom and dad whenever possible, and enjoys being a happy and well-balanced dog. Way to go Izzy!

And thank you Suzann and Ambos Rescue in San Carlos, Mexico for giving Izzy another chance.
