Poisonous Plants

Pets, especially puppies and kittens, tend to explore their world by putting everything in their mouth. This may help them learn about their environment, but it can also be harmful. Many plants are dangerous. Some may cause vomiting or diarrhea while others may cause organ failure and death. Pet owners should seriously take the responsibility of keeping pets away from dangerous plants.

Below is a list of some of the more common poisonous plants. This list is not all poisonous plants. The same plant may also have different common names, depending on the area you live in. Every pet owner should know what plants are in and around their home.

If you think your pet has chewed or eaten one of these plants, please contact your veterinarian, animal emergency clinic or the poison control center for advice.
